Those who are fortunate enough to own farm lands in the immediate vicinity of Counal Bluffs are sending up a lusty wail of dissatisfaction now that the time has come for them to pay their yearly taxes. It was formerly the custom to assess the farms in Kane township outside the city at about the same flaure as the adjacent town lots, but this method was the cause of so much kicking by the property owners, who claimed that they received nothing, whatever, in the shape of fire protection, water service or lights, in return for their taxes, that the matter was finally taken to the district court for settle-ment. Several years ago Judge Loofburow ment. Several years ago Judge Loolburow decided that the property owners of the outside districts should have an assessor of their own. W. S. Duncan was accordingly appointed to this office, and the dissatisfied farmers lapsed into silence.

Now, however, it is claimed there has been an effort on the Board of Supervisors to burden the owners of the outside property onjustly. It is claimed that the Board of Supervisors, when sitting as a board of equalization, raised the assessment made by Duncan, 150 per cent throughout, so that their assessments are nearly, if not quite, as high as they were before Judge Loufbur-row's decision. There is much dissatisfac-tion over the matter and threats are made by some of the parties interested that injunc-tion suits will be brought to restrain the ounty from collecting the taxes levied by

The Coliscom Attractions Drawing Immense Crowds Nightly.

As the time draws near for the exposition at the Coliscum to close the size of the crowds which risit the building nightly are on the increase. New attractions are added to the several exhibits almost every day, and each visit reveals something not seen before The number of the exhibits is also increased and the interest of the visitor is kept alive. Many curious and instructive things are to be seen on every side. The actual opera-tion of many complicated pieces of machipery and the sight of skilled mechanics. busily engaged in carrying on the manufac-ture of various articles, form centers of attraction for large crowds. Americans are an inquisitive people and the sight of mechanics or artists at work is sure to attract the attention of the entire populace. This is plainly evident in the crowds which con-stantly surround the exhibits in which some sort of mechanical work is being done. In the center of the building, in a large open space, stands the gallows on which Murderer Neal paid the penalty for his devilish crime. The gallows stands precisely as it was when it did its deadly work, every thing being arranged exactly as it was on that day with the exception of the rope, which is replaced with a hemp rope of the same sire, having the noose tied to it.

The exposition will close on next Wednesday night in order to give ample time to remove the exhibits and prepare the building for the Gilmore concerts.

The Columbus Buggy company exhibits a number of fine vehicles, among them being several novelties never before shown. The reputation of the Columbus Buggy company was last week fully endorsed at the St. Louis fair and exposition, where this company re-ceived the first premium.
